SCARECROW TRAIL

September 30th - October 23rd

WHAT'S WITH ALL THE SCARECROWS?

Lost River Cave hosted its first annual Scarecrow Trail in 2012 to encourage kids and families to get back in touch with the outdoors. Every October since, the park trails come alive with scarecrows created by Bowling Green businesses, families and organizations. Now in its eleventh year, we hope you'll make this Scarecrow Trail the best one yet!

GIVE BACK WITH A SCARECROW

Each scarecrow represents a desire to get children unplugged and back in nature. By entering a scarecrow, you help maintain Lost River Cave's trails and 72-acre park, a place where our community can enjoy more green time and less screen time.

BE SEEN BY BOWLING GREEN

Last October, over 50,000 people visited Lost River Cave. Make your 'crow an awesome display that shares your message and represents your business, organization or family, while encouraging folks to get outside and enjoy nature! Lost River Cave will provide signage with your logo or name to identify your participation.

Your 'Crow Crew will be recognized on lostrivercave.org and shared with our 26,000+ followers on Facebook as well as nearly 5,500+ followers on Instagram and Twitter!

WIN THIS YEAR'S BRAGGING RIGHTS!

Trail visitors will choose 1st, 2nd and 3rd place 'crows. Lost River Cave Staff will also vote on their favorite as well as other scarecrow superlatives!

TIPS FOR MAKING YOUR 'CROW

Your 'Crow Crew is on its way to becoming a Lost River Cave Scarecrow Trail Champion. Follow these tips to get started down the trail to victory!

PLANNING YOUR SCARECROW

Think about what your business, organization or family is all about! Get creative with materials and ideas; your field of business or motto can provide great ideas for props. If all else fails, search the Internet for scarecrow ideas. There are lots of good examples online. You could also use your favorite movie villain, cartoon character, sports figure, forest animal, or even better, a Bowling Green person, place or thing!

IMPORTANT THINGS TO REMEMBER

It's important to weatherproof your 'crow! Scarecrows will be subject to weather for the entire month. They need to be constructed with weather-resistant materials and Scotchgard. Clothing that does not fade easily, such as nylon and polyester, will hold up better than cotton.

While you can use an array of materials, some aren't sogreat for the great outdoors. Newspaper or water-soluble packing peanuts will not hold up when exposed to weather. However, they can be used as stuffing when encased in weatherproof plastic bags. Avoid perishable produce like pumpkins because they will rot. No hay bales should be included in your display. Using a hay bale will be automatic disqualification.

Design your scarecrow so that you can attach it to the frame at the ankles, waist and shoulders. Bring extra fabric or a belt to cover the attachment. Your 'crow will stay outdoors in the valley, so make sure everything is secure. Sewing is best, but large safety pins or staples will work. Clear tape will not hold up to weather, but electrical or duct tape works well.

SUGGESTED ITEMS:

- Boards and sticks for back support and arms
- Search your closet and thrift stores to outfit your scarecrow
- Plastic bags for stuffing arms and legs
- Heavy duty rubber, gardening or leather gloves for hands
- Rope, string, staples, glue or paint
- Remember the details! A glittering pair of high-heels or slick pair of shades may be just what your scarecrow needs.

THE HEAD AND HAIR:

- Facial expression is the first thing a viewer will notice. Draw a face with a permanent marker or sew a face with pieces of felt or colored cloth
- Make a head by packing plastic bags into an old pillowcase or pour paint into a one-gallon plastic milk carton to coat the inside
- Ideas for hair: yarn, broom, shredded plastic, moss, raffia or old mop head
- Attach the head by pulling it down onto the top of the post and attaching with a wire, nails or staples
